

A New Love

You stand in the corner of the room and crave my attention, but you no longer excite me, in fact, I'd say you have become boring. Your large stature and slender figure irritate me.

You are constantly repeating yourself and your obsession with the latest 'must-have' accessories has put a strain on my finances, so I think the time has come to let you know I have found someone new.

Her sweet voice always cheers me up and her highly polished buttons brighten up my day.

So off to eBay you must go as I welcome home my new radio.